Park Partners

Private sector support for America's national parks is a tradition as old as the parks themselves. Even before the establishment of the National Park Service in 1916, citizens were stepping forward to protect special places that exemplify the country's heritage. Flight 93 National Memorial works with several primary partners.

National Park Foundation

NATIONAL PARK
FOUNDATION

Flight 93 National Memorial Campaign

The National Memorial is being built through a public-private partnership with approximately half the funds coming from the private sector. The National Park Foundation, the congressionally-chartered partner of the National Park Service, is leading a national campaign to raise the necessary private funds.

Friends of Flight 93

Who are the Friends? - Friends groups are found at many national parks, raising awareness and appreciation for these special places and helping to provide educational and interpretive resources to enhance the experience of every visitor. The Friends are recognized by the National Park Service as the official support group for Flight 93 National Memorial. Established in 2009, the Friends of Flight 93 National Memorial is a varied group. Just two years after incorporating, the Friends include 215 members from 13 states. They are family members of the passengers and crew, first responders and investigative personnel who responded to the crash site in September 2011, U.S. Capitol employees and a U.S. Congressman, members of the media, volunteer Ambassadors, and many others from various walks of life, all with the same goal: to ensure that the story Flight 93 is always honored and remembered.
